UFO like eclipse light described in Sky at Night Magazine January issue
 The Sky at Night Magazine this month (following the editor's denial of any evidence for UFOs in the last issue, and article on misidentifications) had a letter from someone who had seen something very similar to my camera sighting during the total eclipse in Turkey in 2006. This was described in Amskaya at the time, and was a light which had appeared in different positions in the five pictures I took of the eclipse, suggesting it was moving erratically round the sky.

From Michael Graham in Bebington, the letter read: "The article on UFOs in your December issue intrigued me. In 1964, when I was 15, I was sitting with a friend on a park wall on a very clear night in winter - there was no Moon. My friend suddenly said he'd seen a star move, and pointed at a section of sky near the zenith. Nothing was moving as I looked. About a minute passed and then what seemed to be just another star moved in a straight line. It passed another star and stopped dead. My first thought was a helicopter, but it was far too high and there was no sound of any engines. We watched for a couple of minutes and suddenly it moved again in a straight line, but at a right angle to its first path, then stopped dead still again. I know now that artificial satellites can move like this, but, as far as I know, not in 1964."

The editor said it may have been multiple satellites or meteors with short paths, but admitted these explanations were not entirely satisfactory.

MANY UFOS SEEN ALREADY IN 2010

Although the year has just started, a search on Google for "ufo 2010" revealed a lot of sightings all over the world already. Here are a few of them:

Mass UFO Sightings over Lima Peru Causes Panic

A wave of mass UFO sightings across South America is currently occurring, leaving bewildered witnesses wondering if indeed beings from other worlds might be visiting Planet Earth. Stunned residents of towns and villages across Argentina, Peru and Chile as well as other nations have seen multiple objects ranging from 'mother ships' to 'Cigar-shaped' crafts over the last week alone. In at least one case a power outage accompanied such an event.

Eastwood, Nottingham - October 2009 to now

My Family and I have seen a progression of varying UFO's over the past 4 months. The first sighting began with a strange star like object in the distance which would pulsate. The most striking thing was how low the star seemed, you hardly had to lift your head to see the light. It was in the sky nearly every evening and night. After a couple of weeks the star like object seemed to move, it would move very slowly towards our home from the distance. As it became closer and closer it made a sort of humming sound very similar to a helicopter and a similar slow speed. As the large star like light moved towards us the closer it came we realised it was a triangle shape object or fighter jet shape with orange lights on the ends and huge white lights under neath. Several would appear in the sky one after the other. They were around several times throughout the last few months some times lower and more visible than others. The last different sighting that has been seen has been very different to the triangular / fighter jet style crafts. There were several orange objects more like comets moving in formation across the sky over the same area. If anybody else has seen these it would be very interesting to know.

Florida - 01-02-10

The UFO was like a star-shape - brightly lit. It came from the south going north to northeast. I live near a small airport, Hoffman's Aviation. There was three small planes in the area and this UFO came right in between all of them, there is no way for the pilots to miss the UFO, it came close to all of them. I have a big flash light and shone my light on it while it was in between all the planes not to mention the jets that were flying at a high altitude.

Then the UFO took off to the east, and the more it went the faster it got until it dimmed out to the east. I'm outside sky watching, I'm out almost every night and lately since its been colder out, the UFOs have been coming down closer to roof tops.

This UFO went slow. I don't have a video camera or I would have tried to film it. Source: www.mufon.com

Nevada - 01-02-10

My husband, mom, youngest child and I were traveling eastbound on I-80 just outside of Mustang when I first noticed a steady stream of red lights travel right in front of our vehicle.

At first it almost resembled sets of vehicle tail lights, but I knew that that was not possible because vehicles do not travel in that direction on that part of the highway and the object was flying extremely fast.

I was the first to notice it, and got the attention of the others just in time to see the tail end of it. I immediately began looking for answers as to what it was, but there was no explanation.

We were still in shock when it happened again in the same direction, south heading north.

This time all of us saw it very clearly, but still are completely unaware of anything that this could be other than a UFO.

The experience of the sighting was amazing. People will continue to be skeptical about this life form until something like this happens to them. I admit, I had my doubts, until tonight. There is not a question in my mind about what I saw. I saw a UFO.

Oregon - 12-31-09

I was driving to Fred Meyers grocery store, the weather was dark, mild rainstorm was going on, but strangely there were some pockets of clear spots. I parked my car at the store.

The other people around me were rushing into the store to hide from the rain and cold, cars where driving past me as well. There was a feeling of high stress.

I saw a flash of white light like in a searching pattern. The object flew over the store, and I saw the ship clearly for a around 10 seconds - it was thin and the shape was like a cigar, it was black or a very dark color.

Both ends of the UFO had lights which worked in a search pattern. It also had a number of red, glowing lights. It moved slowly and steadily through the air. Because of the people rushing inside of the store, it seems that nobody else saw the object.

Tennessee - 12-31-09

My family and I were watching fireworks, and we saw what looked like an airplane coming from the east at an incredible speed. As it got closer, it stopped on a dime and hovered in the air maybe one mile from our house.

From the looks of it, the object was disc-shaped with lights going all around it. They didn't look at all normal, the entire ship looked to be on fire. After hovering for what seemed two or three seconds, it shot to the north then stopped on a dime while it hovered again. Five seconds went by, then at light speeds it vanished. Three seconds went by, then another one came and did the exact same thing the one before did, then vanished. After that one left three seconds later we saw the exact thing happed again.

I know this all sounds crazy but it happened. My wife got curious and got online and typed in UFO sightings - Springhill. The 10th of this month, a neighbor of ours sighted the exact same thing. If anybody can explain what this is and why this keeps happening in my neighborhood, I would appreciate it.

UFO Sighting Over Cardiff New Year Eve 2010, UK

My partner and I were walking back home in Cardiff (South Wales) on New Year's Day at about 12.10 am . We were walking through town towards Splott and we saw a reddish/orange round glow in the sky.

We thought at first it was the glow of a searchlight on a plane or helicopter very high up. We could not however hear any engine, or see any running lights, and it was moving in a perfect straight line. Like one of the comments above states - it seemed to 'burn out' after a while.....sort of turned white, got smaller and then vanished. On our way home we saw another 3 more of these objects - all moving in a straight line, at considerable speed, and vanishing. My girlfriend reckons that these objects 'cloaked' out of sight. My Father saw them in Ely, and my brother saw them in Thornhill.

The recent videos of these objects very closely resemble what we saw. I know that these could be chinese lanterns, but somehow - I really don't think that they were. I personally think they (whoever and whatever they were) were checking out the Human tradition of setting off fireworks!

Why isn't there a media outlet making a bigger thing of all these sightings? I think it's quite a newsworthy story.

Werrington, 1 Jan 10 approx 00:10hrs Mr Jon Pritchard

I was sober (as I was at work at 07:30hrs New Years day) and had just stepped outside the front door facing South. I looked up to almost overhead and saw a fast moving bright orange light travelling East to West. The light dimmed as it travelled further west and eventually faded out long before it reached the horizon. I am into astronomy and have often seen the International Space Station as it passes over. The ISS travels West to East and this orange light was of a similar appearance and apparent speed, but the ISS shines with a white light. The light from the ISS fades out in exactly the same manner as it passes into the Earths shadow. This tells me the orange object was reflecting sun light and not generating light artificially and that the orange object was also in space.

It was not a meteorite as there was no trail and it was too slow. DEFINITELY not an aeroplane: no noise, the light was not navigation or anti-collision lights and they would not have faded out. NOT chinese lanterns, too high, too fast, light obviously reflected. A satellite? Well I have seen plenty of these but they are always far dimmer, slower and all the ones I have seen follow a pole to pole orbit. So the best way to sum it up is just like the ISS but noticeably orange and travelling in the opposite direction. Most curious

Enfield, Middlesex- 1st January 2010 Time: 00.30 Mr & Mrs K Wright

My wife and I were returning from a New Year's eve party at the Salvation Army Church in Church Street, Enfield. We noticed four bright orange lights in the sky, which we first thought were aircraft. We realised that these were not aircraft when we observed that one of the orange lights was travelling North to South quite rapidly, and at the same time another orange light was travelling south to north. They then came side by side each other and remained stationary for about 1 minute. The other two lights were moving around east and west during this time. They then dispersed rapidly in southerly direction and disappeared from view. We estimated that this took place over a period of about 10 minutes.

We do not feel that these were Chinese lanterns because they were not moving all together in the direction of the wind, and seemed to be moving far too fast, as well as the fact that two of the lights converged.

Johannesburg, South Africa- 9 January 2010 Between 8pm and 10pm Anonymous

My daughter was outside and suddenly called out to us. We ran out and saw her pointing to the sky. There was no wind and the sky above our house was clear with clouds in the distance. We looked up and saw 11 to 15 orange orbs gliding from East to West. We didn't hear any sound. We considered all the possibilities – helicopter, balloons, light plane, lanterns, airplane. But these orbs moved in the same direction, at the same speed in clusters of about 4 to 5 we saw about three such clusters. We don't have any chinese celebrations and have ruled out lanterns. Planes, helicopters, etc do not fly that close together and we would have heard sounds. It all lasted a few minutes. No one else we know has seen any sightings. What do you think this is?

Leeds-9th January 2010 9th January about 6:00 Marc

I was stood outside my house smoking a cigarette, I heard a very slight roaring sound in the sky, I looked up, and noticed a cluster of orange orbs in the sky, then at the same speed, in the same direction, and in the same formation, they quickly and silently sped off within two seconds.

I was in shock, and I ran inside to try and find a rational, sceptical explanation to what I have just seen, so far I have recovered nothing, just more sites supporting what I have seen as a UFO, or even a fleet of UFOs.

My husband and I saw an orange light as if something was on fire. There was no noise. It travelled about as fast as a helicopter from north to south, and seemed to stop occasionally. It looked too big to be a Chinese lantern.

Hamilton, Scotland- 9th January 2010 23:00 – 23:05 Chris

As I looked outside I seen what i thought may be a firework behind some houses in the distance but after its continous climb and speed I realized this was not a firework!

The bright red glowing object carried on over the houses and continued to climb far into the sky until it disappeared!

The object was traveling NE to SE at a steady climb at around 50-70 degrees. Object at first looked like a firework as it was glowing red but of course was not as it traveled far into the sky almost appearing to be joining the stars.

Object was very far away but as i say it was behind houses this is because they are very close in front of me and object was in the distance. I have never seen anything like this in my life before, to be honest i thought it looked like a missile but of course if it was this would cause national coverage. Was in sight for around 30 seconds. Unfortunately did not have time to film this but I hope others seen this in the sky.

Over Morecambe Bay from Grangeover Sands- 9th January 2010 10pm Mr R A

My Dad saw approx 11 lights crossing the sky from E to W over Morecambe Bay Lancashire, (he lives in Grange -over -Sands , Cumbria) at around 10pm last night Sat 9th January 2010. He seems to think they were flying in a formation and they crossed right over from east to West in a few minutes suggestion a high speed. Did anyone else see these ?????

Russians photograph Adamski-type submarine spacecraft

A recently televised UFO Files programme mentioned unidentified submarine objects reported by Russian submarine commanders. Paul Stonehill had been researching into declassified Soviet documents, and found that submarines had been followed in deep waters by objects they could not explain.

Russian submariners sighting

One cigar-shaped object was photographed flying over a Soviet ship and resembled a picture taken by Adamski which he said was a submarine type spacecraft.

Integraton is now a B&B

Paul Screeton's Folklore Frontiers reports that the Integraton, built by contactee George Van Tassel, has been bought by three sisters and turned into a boarding house sleeping 30. The dome-shaped building was claimed to have been built on instructions from his extraterrestrial visitors, as a device for rejuvenating the human body, but Van Tassel died before it could be completed.

Van Tassell was an aircraft mechanic with experience in flying and flight test work for such firms as Douglas, Howard Hughes and Lockheed dating from 1927. He and his wife came to Giant Rock, California with the intent of running a small airport and a restaurant. The last never materialised, but his airport became famous as the venue for many flying saucer conventions at which most of the well-known contactees of the fifties could be found. He is the author of I Rode a Flying Saucer and The Council of Seven Lights.

His own contact occurred one night when he and his wife were sleeping outside the house.

This was quite common practice in those parts of houses without air conditioning, as they became unbearably hot inside. He was awoken by a man in a one-piece blue suit standing beside his bed who said "My name is Solganon, I'd be pleased to show you my craft". He tried to wake his wife but was unable to do so.

The ship was standing about a hundred yards away, and on being taken aboard he found it was very like the one in the film The Day the Earth Stood Still, except that this one had a column in the centre. He was shown how furniture could be brought out of the walls, and instruments rose out of what had appeared to be shelves. He saw clothes hanging in wardrobes, and responses to his questions were given before he spoke them.

He was then taken through a "manhole" below the deck and saw two rotors turning in opposite directions, and what appeared to be gear wheels which reminded him of the "wheels within wheels" of the Book of Ezekiel in the Bible. He was then accompanied out of the ship and the man said "We'll be seeing you". When he had re-entered the ship it took off and vanished within about seven seconds.

The rock the area is named after is a huge boulder with a small room carved in the bottom in which Van Tassell carried out thought communication sessions with space people. People who visited it said it felt very powerful.

A lesser known contactee

One of the lesser-known contactees of the 1950s was a man called Richard Miller. He had his initial close encounter in 1954, after contacting extraterrestrials on short-wave radio. They instructed him to go to an isolated location near Ann Arbor in Michigan, where after fifteen minutes a disc shaped object appeared and landed nearby. This he was to learn, was called 'Phoenix'. A doorway opened in the base of the vehicle and a staircase descended. Miller described what happened next. "There, standing at the head of the stairway, was a young man dressed in a brown one-piece. He beckoned me to enter the ship, which I did. I was standing in a large circular hallway which seemed to encircle the whole craft. Although nothing had yet been said, the young man radiated a kind of friendliness which put me at ease." Miller was taken to the control room of the ship where he met the extraterrestrial commander, Soltec, who greeted him in perfect English.

He explained that their planet, Centurus of the Alpha Centauri system, belonged to the 'Universal Confederation', a group of over 680 planets which earned the right to membership by their evolutionary progress. The contactee was told that, before Earth could become a member, mankind would have to awaken to higher spiritual values: "When love of your fellow man becomes established, then will the Sons of Light appear and the Kingdom of your God will reign on Earth". The 'Sons of Light', Miller was told, were what the Bible referred to 'angels'. Richard Miller's contacts continued for over twenty years, all meticulously recorded in a library of writings and <http://www.goldenlightfleet.com/wordpress/index.php?>

His most famous book is Star Wars and the organization he founded is known as Solar Cross, in San Jose California, although they have currently retired from public activity.

Alpha Centauri is a star which is very close to Earth in astronomical terms - about four light years - and is the scene of the recent science fiction film Avatar.

Extraterrestrial Life & UFOs

From website <http://www.webpan.com/dsinclair/ufo.html> This website is packed with fascinating information about extraterrestrial life.

This page is about the next "Copernican revolution" - the realization that humanity is not alone in the universe. Just a couple of years ago, conventional astronomical wisdom held that the formation of life is such an unlikely event that humanity is almost certainly the only intelligent species in the universe. But with the recent discovery of extrasolar planetary systems, and the realization that life might exist or have existed elsewhere in our own solar system (on Mars and beneath the icy crust of Jupiter's moon Europa), the odds have dramatically shifted in favour of life.

The existence of life on Earth does not imply anything for the probability of life existing elsewhere, because if life did not exist on Earth, we would not exist to observe it (this observer effect is known as the anthropic principle). But if life arose independently on another body in our solar system, and planetary systems are the rule, not the exception, then life must be abundant in the universe. And that means that intelligent life could be abundant in the universe.

So why do many serious scientists reject the idea that aliens could be visiting the earth? Because according to conventional wisdom, interstellar travel is simply not feasible. However, the same thing was said about flying in the 19th century, and nuclear power was declared impossible just a few years before it became a reality. History teaches us that when physicists complacently lean back and declare such-and-such to be an impossibility, a major revolution might be right around the corner.

Today, two such revolutions are in the making. The first is free energy. Quantum physics teaches us that the vacuum is far from being empty. On the contrary, it holds great amounts of energy - the so-called zero-point energy. So far, it has been the prevailing orthodoxy in physics that this energy cannot be tapped. However, some physicists believe differently. Nuclear physicist Tom Bearden has designed a functioning prototype of a device he calls the Motionless Electromagnetic Generator that produces electrical energy from the vacuum. Bearden and his Alabama company, Magnetic Energy Limited, are currently looking for investors to develop and mass-produce the invention, which is proving to be a formidable obstacle, since major investment companies are not eager to develop a technology that could single-handedly destroy whole industries. Once the MEG, or a similar device is commercially available, human civilization will be transformed virtually overnight. Providing clean energy in abundance, without fuel needs or exhausts, free energy devices will solve many of our most urgent global problems. They will end the environmental destruction caused by cars, planes and fossil-fuel burning power plants. They will provide developing countries with the energy to develop, but without the environmental and health penalties that the developed countries have paid, and are still paying. And even more important: they will give us 'the freedom of the solar system'.

Our current space activities are held back by a lack of compact, but powerful energy sources. On the surface of the earth, we sit at the bottom of a deep gravity well, and it takes enormous amounts of energy to get things into orbit. Introduce abundant energy into the equation, and humanity will have the freedom of the solar system. Even interstellar travel would become a practical reality, for travel at relativistic speeds would no longer be energy-prohibitive.

Still, such ships would be limited by the speed of light. Or would they? Some physicists believe that it is possible to engineer space-time itself, to surround a spaceship with a local space time in such a way that locally, the light barrier remains intact, while from the outside, the ship is moving at superluminal velocity. This sounds exactly like Star Trek's warp drive, but that doesn't make it an invalid idea. In fact, NASA is taking this idea and others like it very seriously, as you can convince yourself by visiting NASA's Breakthrough Propulsion Physics Program.

THE HIDDEN UNITY and BEGINNINGS

The Hidden Unity looks at the strange phenomenon of subconscious siting of ley points, and notes that places of worship, of all religions and all ages, tend to predominate on leys. The environmental and philosophical implications of this are discussed, and the apparent necessity of worship but irrelevance of doctrine. Two ley centres are given as examples, and investigated in depth - the Shah Jehan Mosque in Woking and the Guru Nanak Sikh Temple, Scunthorpe. There is an appendix by Eileen Grimshaw on the significance of the Pagan religion to this study. Illustrated with photographs, maps and line drawings. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Beginnings is about a series of potentially useful discoveries, mainly made by Jimmy Goddard over a period of about twenty years, but having some overlap with discoveries made by others. For various reasons, the investigations are all in their early stages, and some have not been continued. They include earth energy detection, natural antigravity, subconscious siting, ley width, and the solar transition effect. There is also a chapter on cognitive dissonance - a psychological factor which seems to have been at the root of all bigotry - scientific, religious and other - down the ages. The booklet is concluded with an account of the discovery of leys by Alfred Watkins. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

EARTH PEOPLE, SPACE PEOPLE

In 1961, Tony Wedd produced a manuscript Earth Men, Space Men, detailing many claims of extraterrestrial contact. It was never published, and I had thought it was lost, though it has recently been located - Tony had given it to Timothy Good. To try to make up for the loss in a much more modest size, this booklet was prepared. As well as giving details of some of the more prominent contact claims, there are articles on the history of the STAR Fellowship and some of its personalities, evidence for life in the Solar System and investigation into extraterrestrial language.
